1. How Hexagon selects suppliers

Hexagon will select suppliers based on an assessment of the overall competitiveness of the offering. This assessment includes a number of factors other than purely financial aspects such as, competency, technology, process management, logistics, leadership and investments in continuous improvement.

When choosing suppliers we aim to give particular preference to suppliers that are in the forefront of environmental focus and work and that live up to the goals and values articulated in Hexagon's Corporate Responsibility Guidelines, based on the UN Global Compact.

2. Compliance with Code of Business Conduct and Ethics

Hexagon expects its suppliers to follow the Hexagon Code of Business Conduct and Ethics ("the Code"). Within its sphere of influence Hexagon will seek to promote and assess compliance with the Code.

Within an extended global supply chain there is always a risk that some suppliers might not meet acceptable standards. This risk is greater in some developing countries with weak regulations or enforcement procedures. Purchasing officers within the Hexagon Group will take this into account when assessing new suppliers or monitoring existing suppliers.

3. Collaboration with suppliers

Hexagon will work collaboratively with suppliers on the implementation of the Code, which may include audits to assess performance.

4. When things go wrong

In cases where non-compliance with the Code is discovered, Hexagon will engage with the supplier and promptly take appropriate action which may consist of taking suitable measures to ensure that the issue will not be repeated or changing suppliers.
